About the Co-Organizers

Asian Development Bank

The Asian Development Bank (ADB) is committed to achieving a prosperous, inclusive, resilient, and sustainable Asia and the Pacific, while sustaining its efforts to eradicate extreme poverty. Established in 1966, it is owned by 68 members —49 from the region. Its main instruments for helping its developing member countries are policy dialogue, loans, equity investments, guarantees, grants, and technical assistance.

The Economic Research and Development Impact Department of ADB undertakes policy research to generate knowledge on key development issues of critical importance to the region; advise on strategic issues that contribute to ADB's performance; and support ADB's lending operations, policy dialogue with DMCs, and capacity building activities.

Asian Development Bank Institute

The Asian Development Bank Institute (ADBI) is the Tokyo-based think tank of the Asian Development Bank. ADBI provides demand-driven policy research, capacity building and training, and outreach to help developing countries in Asia and the Pacific practically address sustainability challenges, accelerate socioeconomic change, and realize more robust, inclusive, and sustainable growth.

Seoul National University Institute of Economic Research

The Seoul National University Institute of Economic Research has been engaged in continuous theoretical research and policy development on economic issues since February 1961, when its predecessor, the Korea Economic Research Institute, was established to contribute to the stability and development of the Korean economy.

The institute has been conducting various academic research projects according to each researcher's major field of study, and it also continues to conduct joint research projects with other research institutes in Korea and abroad by holding seminars, symposiums, and research presentations. In addition, the institute publishes 'Economic Monographs' in Korean and 'Seoul Journal of Economics' in English, which aim to be places for policy discussions on the Korean economy.

Asian Development Review

The Asian Development Review (ADR) is the journal of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) and the Asian Development Bank Institute (ADBI). It publishes research on development issues relevant to the countries of the Asia and Pacific region, specifically ADB's member countries. The ADR publishes empirical papers, survey articles, historical analyses, and policy-oriented work. It bridges theoretical work and rigorous empirical studies that advance the understanding of Asia's development, and it is open to discussions of alternative perspectives on all aspects of development, including globalization, inequality, structural transformation, and poverty. The ADR aims to disseminate the best research, with contributions from scholars in all fields, with the objective of providing the knowledge necessary for designing, implementing, and sustaining effective development policies. Its intended audience comprises a worldwide readership of economists and other social scientists.

Authors of selected papers from the AEDC conference program will be invited to present their papers in a Mini Symposium of the ADR at AEDC and submit their work for publication in the Asian Development Review \(ADR\).
